

Message of gratitude from the editors to our ad hoc reviewers

Neurology will receive almost 2,500 manuscripts this year. Over 99% of these were sent for peer review. Virtually all papers have two reviewers and over 25% had three or more reviewers. The members of our Editorial Board review the majority of accepted papers and over one third of all papers. Most accepted papers require at least one re-review, and many need one or more additional re-reviews.

The major share of this task of reviewing manuscripts falls to our ad hoc reviewers. These reviewers provide rapid, thorough analysis of papers and essentially shape the literature of clinical neurology with extraordinary fairness and evenhandedness. Many of the most distinguished academic neurologists in the world provide detailed, mentoring reviews and help with the difficult choice of selecting the ~20% of submitted papers that we accept for publication.

Neurology has Canadian neurologists on our Editorial Board and has always received help from reviewers from Canada. Since I assumed the Editorship in January 1997, we have also asked for the help of a large number of overseas reviewers, over 50 representing 17 countries. Overseas reviewers are at least as timely in reviewing as their US counterparts.

Listed below are our ad hoc reviewers. Those with an asterisk have reviewed five or more papers and those with two asterisks have reviewed 10 or more.
