From April 1, 2010, through September 30, 2010, Neurology[®] received 2,211 new and 666 revised manuscripts compared to 2,021 new and 622 revised manuscripts during the same period in 2009. During this interval, 3,758 peer reviews were received, with the average turnaround time after assignment being 8.6 days. The average time from submission to first decision for papers chosen for review remained at 33 days. Due to limitations in the number of pages we can print, we can accept only a minority of papers submitted. Your specific comments regarding the uniqueness of study populations, novel methods, studies that are especially educational, or new strategies for diagnosing and treating neurologic disease are appreciated, as these specific comments are extremely valuable in helping us make our final decisions regarding which articles we believe will most benefit our authors and readers, as well as improve patient care.

Many reviewers have also been extraordinarily gracious in offering their time to review manuscripts for the Resident and Fellow Section of Neurology[®]. These papers are often submitted by trainees who have less experience in preparing articles for publication, and it is the goal of the Section to help these junior authors improve their clinical and scientific writing abilities. The constructive feedback provided by reviewers of these manuscripts plays an important role in developing the next generation of neurologists and researchers.

Please send email to journal@neurology.org if you would like to do more reviews than we have requested of you. If you have never reviewed for the journal but are interested in doing so, email us with a description of your credentials and expertise in the areas in which you are qualified to review.

The reviewers listed below with one asterisk have reviewed 5 or more papers. Two asterisks indicate that the reviewer has reviewed 10 or more manuscripts. This list includes those reviewers who returned a review or reviews of initial submissions (re-reviews of the same manuscript are not included) between April 1, 2010, and September 30, 2010.
