Innovations in Care Delivery (IICD) highlights articles that feature advances in care delivery in our Editor's Blog, Editor's Top Five Recommended Reading, and Latest Articles sections. Interviews with leaders in the field of health services research are included periodically.

Editor's blog

Recent IICD blogs have discussed issues relating to the COVID-19 pandemic, including stroke assessments in the COVID-19 era, effective communication in inpatient neurology, finding joy during a pandemic, and practicing telemedicine during the pandemic. Our goal is to highlight health services research articles published in Neurology[®] and Neurology: Clinical Practice[®] and provide opinions by experts in the field.

In a commentary in Neurology, Grossman et al.¹ described their neurology department's transformation from in-person outpatient visits to a mostly virtual neurology practice in response to the COVID-19 pandemic. They discuss their experience performing clinically meaningful examinations and also logistics about documentation, coding, and billing for virtual services.

Also, check out the Views & Reviews article by Leira et al.² and a large, diverse group of experts in stroke care. The article addresses the quality of the stroke care delivered, ethical considerations in stroke care, safety and logistic issues for providers of stroke patients, and stroke research.
